MET PEABODY FACE TO FACE TODAY

Man Whose Life He Sought For Years Offers To Shake His Hand, And Prisoner Breaks Down Completely.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Boise, Idaho, June 13.—The trial of Wm. D. Haywood was resumed this morning with Orchard still on the stand. Orchard broke down and cried as Richardson plied him with questions as to how McParland had talked to him in jail and told him Bible stories. Orchard recovered himself rapidly and began answering the questions with his usual even voice. He detailed McParland's methods in securing the confession.
Former Governor Peabody and Orchard met face to face in the office of Attorney Hawley.
As Peabody approached the man who hunted him for years Orchard shrank back and trembled.
The former governor, smiling, held out his hand, saying: "How are you, Orchard."

Orchard broke down completely. He said: "I am ashamed to look at you sir; I am ashamed to speak to you. I am thankful I did not kill you and am spared the thought of that crime."

The contributions to the Moyer-Haywood defense fund amounted $87,787, and disbursements to $79,516.

INLAND WATERWAY ENTHUSIASTS MEET

FAKE JEWELRY NOW UNDER FEDERAL BAN

Will Urge Quick Completion of Southern Canal For Which Congress Has Given $600,000.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Beaumont, Texas, June 13.—The executive committee of the Interstate Inland Waterway Association of Texas and Louisiana, which was formed at a meeting held in Luke Charles a year ago, assembled here today for its first meeting. The secretaries of numerous commercial organizations throughout the two states are also taking part in the proceedings. The chief purpose of the committee meeting is to arrange for a convention of the full organization to be held in October. This convention will urge upon congress the necessity for an early completion of the proposed interstate canal. The last session of congress appropriated about $600,000, equally divided between two states, for the beginning of the construction work. The completion of this inland waterway will create new industrial conditions and shift the commerce of the Mississippi and Rio Grande valleys from an artificial to a natural basis, afford cheap, fair, equal and adequate transportation facilities to all lines of business. In addition to the canal problem the commercial secretaries now in convention will discuss numerous other matters relating to the welfare and development of Texas and Louisiana. Governor Campbell of Texas, Governor Blanchard of Louisiana, Hon. O. B. Colquitt and other men of prominence are among the scheduled speakers. Methods of securing new industries, Panama and the coast trade, transportation and other matters will be given attention.

Old Genuine Metals Can Bear Stamps When Used For Interstate or Foreign Commerce.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., June 13.—The law enacted at the last session of congress to prohibit false stamps on gold and silver articles entering into interstate or foreign commerce goes into effect today. The reform has long been agitated by leading American manufacturers of jewelry, silverware, watches and optical supplies. As the federal statute, however, applies only to interstate and foreign commerce it will be necessary for the state legislatures to pass similar laws in order to protect the domestic trade. In some of the states a stamping law has been enacted. The association of manufacturers will now devote its energies toward the adoption of uniform laws in other states. When this has been done it will put an end to the extensive traffic now carried on in fake jewelry and silverware bearing counterfeit stamps as to quality and manufacture.

KEYSTONE DEMMIES CRY ABOUT GRAFT

Make Issue of Fusionist's Find in State Treasury and Hope to Eject Candidate.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Harrisburg, Pa., June 13.—Members of the democratic state committee met here today to confer in regard to the time and place for holding the state convention. A majority appear to favor a late date for the convention and the gathering probably will be held the latter part of August. The convention will name a candidate for state treasurer to succeed William H. Berry. Among those whose names are already prominently mentioned for the nomination are Senators J. Henry Cochran of Lycoming and Arthur G. DeWalt of Lehigh. Not for some time have the democrats been so hopeful of electing their candidate as in the present campaign. They expect to make the capital scandal their chief issue, and the feel that through the exposure by State Treasurer Berry, who was elected on a fusion ticket, they have more than a fighting chance to elect his successor.

HUMAN LIFE IS THE SACRIFICE

RED TAPE SYSTEM OF THE COUNTRY OFFICIALS TO BLAME.

WILLIAM DILLON IS DYING

Physicians Offered to Operate Free of Charge But Could Not Do So Without Authority.

On a cot in Mercy Hospital lies dying a man whose life is a sacrifice to the red tape system of the country officials. Too late to do anything but alleviate his final sufferings the nurses and physicians can only watch the spark of life slowly ebb away, powerless to save the body of William Dillon.
Picked up near the right-of-way of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road on Tuesday morning, Dillon was hurried from humanitarian motives by the road's officials to the Mercy hospital.

The man was suffering from severe injuries—how inflicted will probably never be known. Physicians were called and did all possible to alleviate his suffering without being able to bring him to the realistic world of consciousness. Poor Commissioner Kenyon was notified of the case, asked to take charge of the man and grant Dr. Nuzum and his associates permission to perform an operation to try to save his life.

A consultation of medical men decided that an operation was necessary, offered to perform it at no expense to the county, and were refused. According to Mr. Kenyon he consulted with the district attorney and was informed he should not take the responsibility; the man had been found on the right-of-way of the railroad—they had sent him to the hospital and should be responsible. The railway held they found the man, aided him from a purely humanitarian standpoint, refused to have further to do with the case, claiming it belongs to the county.

Meanwhile Dillon's life slowly ebbed away. While the two elements, railway and county authorities, disputed the time for the delicate operation passed and now it is too late.
Hogarth in his famous pictures depicts the Doctors disputing at the bedside of the rich man while he dies. Can not a similar picture be drawn of the last hours of William Dillon?
Bound by the rigid state laws the surgeons are powerless. Some one must order the operation. Dillon, if he had regained consciousness, if he had some near relative, and having none the poor commissioner as "next friend," should they have operated without permission the surgeons would lay themselves liable to heavy fines and damages should action be brought. They were powerless and meanwhile Dillon is dying.

Dillon is one of the Lord's sparrows—one of the many unfortunate who have fallen low in the social world, but his life is that of a human being. Stricken down, he lies unconscious of all that surrounds him, his temperature high, his pulse slow. Dying, and the red tape system exists.
Others may follow in his path. Others may be injured, but as long as the present conditions are their lives are in the balance.

Lauds Captain John Smith At The Time In Which He Lived As Great As Teddy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Norfolk, Va., June 13.—The National Editorial Association practically concluded the business of its annual convention today. Though the meeting has been in session since Monday the interest in today's proceedings was as keen as on the opening day. During the forenoon the convention listened to addresses from a number of well-known newspaper publishers and editors, among them John Temple Graves of Atlanta, Crosby S. Noyes of Washington, Will F. Parrott of Waterloo, Iowa, and Ewing Herbert of Hiawatha, Kansas. This afternoon the editors and their wives took a trip to Jamestown Island to view the ruins of the first English settlement in America. There will be a brief business session tomorrow morning to dispose of unfinished business, to elect officers and to select the meeting place for next year. The majority of the editors, particularly those from the middle and western states, have planned to remain in this vicinity for several days to come, visiting Richmond and the Virginia battlefields, Washington, Baltimore and the Atlantic coast resorts.
Journalism since the settlement of Jamestown was the subject of an address delivered before the National Editorial association at the Jamestown exposition today by Crosby S. Noyes, editor of the Washington Star. Noyes reviewed the history of the struggles of Captain John Smith and compared his achievements in planting and sustaining the English colony with the deeds of President Roosevelt in this generation. He declared they "were as worthy of glorification but lacked the aid of the newspaper press that had so greatly helped the latter in his upward career." The newspapers, the speaker declared, have given Roosevelt their vigorous support in his reform policies; have exploited all his sayings, and made his work and name a household word in every home in the land. "Roosevelt has seemed somewhat slow in acknowledging his indebtedness to the press," Noyes said, "but perhaps he will think of it some day when he is not too busy. He is a good deal of a boy yet; as well as a most masterful President."

A large part of the time will be given up to the entertainment features, which will include a reception, automobile racing and a fishing trip.

WEATHER REPORTS NOT ENCOURAGING

Government Station at Milwaukee Has Something to Say to the State At Large.

The abnormally cool weather that has been so pronounced a feature over the state during the past two months has continued throughout the past week, although the deficiency in temperature has been less marked than during most of the preceding weeks, and the lateness of the season makes this deficiency less noticeable. Several of the days during the week were fairly warm, but the nights are still too cool. The temperature went below the freezing point at several places in the northern part of the state on the morning of the 6th, and frost occurred the same morning on the low lands in the middle section. The mean temperature for the week averaged from two to nine degrees below the normal.

The precipitation was light throughout the northern counties but in the central and southern sections it was abundant for present needs. On the 3rd and 4th heavy rains fell at a few places near the shore of Lake Michigan and in the southern tier of counties. The amount of sunshine was about normal for the season, there being five of the seven days when the weather was clear or partly cloudy. The vegetation continues backward but made fairly rapid progress during the week. Warm rains are badly needed in the northern section. On the whole the weather was generally favorable for outdoor work.

Reginald De Koven

Hon. Louis Reginald De Koven,
the author of the famous comic opera of "Robin Hood," was born at Middletown, Conn., on April 3, 1861. He studied music at Sturtevant, Florida, being a violinist and a splendidly trained and finely equipped musician.
On May 1, 1884, Mr. De Koven married the well-known authoress, Miss Anna Farwell. He wrote two operas, the "Begum" and "Don Quixote," before bringing out "Robin Hood," which achieved a success never before equaled by an American-written light opera. Since then he has turned out a number of successful operas. He is the founder and conductor of the Washington (D. C.) Symphony orchestra, and makes his home in Washing-

FANTASY-COMEDY
BY GRADUATES

"A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM"
WELL PLAYED AT HIGH SCHOOL.

AT TIMES AUDIENCE ROARED

The Play Within the Play Ludicrous, Fairly Chorus Pretty, Dramatic Work Good.

Though it had been announced several times that no tickets for the commencement play at the high school last evening would be sold at the door fully two hundred people visited the building between seven and eight o'clock, hoping by some chance to gain admittance. The majority of these were turned away, a few, however, securing tickets from some who held them and were unable to attend. When the orchestra played the overture at eight o'clock and every seat on the floor and in the gallery was occupied. No standing room was sold, the management preferring to disappoint many rather than endanger the safety of the audience.

Twenty-nine in Cast Shakespeare's fantasy-comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." These amateur thespians have been trained during the past two months by Miss Harriet B. Day and she directed the production just evening. She was gratified with the result and deservedly so for in spite of the difficulty in picking such a large cast the play was equal to any ever given at graduation. Frequent applause showed that it was critically approved and expressions of pleasure on the faces of the spectators and repeated rounds and rounds of laughter evidenced the fact that it was thoroughly enjoyed.

Dramatic Roles Well Taken

The first act, which is set in a palace room, served to introduce the light plot. In bearing and voice Harriet B. Day filled well the part of the luxury-loving Theseus, Duke of Athens.
To the role of his consort, Hippolyta, Genevieve Ryan was fitted in
strate Archie Withersell made an excellent man in waiting, proud of and puffed up by his position. In the royal train were Eugene, his daughter Hermia; Lyndsey, in love with Hermia; Demetrius, parentally favored claimant for Hermia's hand, and Helena, in love with Demetrius. Miss Katherine Crall bravely and impetuously made love to Demetrius and as the latter,
William Spohn, spurned her affections with all the disgust and anger due the case. Playing Helena, Miss Sara Mac-Lean excelled in portraying the distractions of the jilted sweetheart and as Lyndsey, Frank Nuzum made a careful, tender suitor. Leonel Burgess was particularly strong as Eugene, being possessed of deep voice that exhibited firmness of purpose.

Comedy Portion Excellent

Comedy was furnished by a company of artisans who practiced and finally produced their tragic play before the Duke of Athens and his court.
William Pöschchen was a most able funmaker as manager of the troupe.
Thomas Cassidy was a star as the thump of the play and in the part of the man with an ass's head of whom the fairy queen became enamored. In the part of Thisbe, the beautiful heroine, Will Langdon exhibited talent in facial expression and in vocal acrobatics. Fred Jensen, in the part of a stone wall, gave a good portrayal of speedy talking amateur actor, and Philip Morse and Clarence Wood as the remainder of the troupe were worthy of praise.

Entrancing Fairy Scenes

Miss Tatie Nott, playing Puck, the clown fairy, was one of the best in the cast. Free and easy in her sprightly gyrations and singing sweetly and clearly she scored a hit. Miss Sarah M. Clapp as Titania, the Queen of the fairies, and Douglas McKee, as Oberon, the king of the fairies, were well able to care for the portions entrusted them. Miss Helen Morrissey was charming as the first fairy and sang well. She was ably assisted by a chorus composed of the Misses Agnes Buck-master, Genevieve Caveny, Katherine Earle, Myrtle Osgood, Mabel Isaac, Catherine Bradley, Louise Bennett, Israel Burdick, Carrie Luman, Lily Belle O'Brien and Mary McGinty. The fairies were gowned in white filmy robes and the scenes they presented

NOT NECESSARY TO TRADE VOTES

In This Contest Voting Certificates Are Issued For The Full Amount To Any Candidate--You Get The Full Benefit Of Your Efforts Yourself.

The members of the different societies in Janesville are beginning to take notice in a lively way of The Daily Gazette's Diamond Watch and Vacation Trip Contest. Many votes are also being received from Districts Nos. 2 and 3 for the popular candidates in those districts. Keep the shears working--the voting is free.

It is the desire of The Daily Gazette, to give everyone an equal chance to vote in the already popular contest.

If you are an old subscriber paying up an account of long standing you will be given the votes for the asking, just as cheerfully as if you were a new subscriber.

As an inducement to get new names on our subscription books we offer a double vote to them.

Everyone should secure The Daily Gazette's subscription certificates for votes, as your friends, the candidates, can use them to good advantage. One additional certificate might secure a for some deserving friend a handsome diamond ring and two trips to the "So" or a beautiful solid gold watch.

If the persons you would like best to see win the prizes have not as yet been nominated, you should nominate them, soon--today is the best. Don't delay--every day counts. Many more nominations are looked for this week. Do the best you can. No one can do more, but do it, and do it now.

One certificate vote for a few months' subscription would give a new candidate a fine lead.

Who will lead tomorrow? It is an absorbing question.

ROOSEVELT AND BRYAN

William J. Bryan says that he finds it increasingly difficult to make a partisan speech as, whenever he does make one, President Roosevelt, a little later, "says the same thing with much more force and eloquence and takes it out of the field of partisanship."

Thus in terms of compliment Mr. Bryan accuses President Roosevelt of stealing his ideas and campaign issues. It begins to look probable that Mr. Bryan will not be a candidate for President if by any possibility President Roosevelt should be forced to run for another term. If he did, the nice things which he has said about Roosevelt could be quoted against him in the campaign. When Horace Greely ran against Grant in 1872 the followers of Grant paraded the streets with banners containing the following sentence from one of Greely's editorials: "Gen. Grant never has been beaten and never will be."

Mr. Bryan would make the strongest, democratic candidate against any republican candidate who represented what is called "the reactionary" position.

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS

That climatic conditions have much to do with the mental condition of people is evidenced by the wet cold spring and early summer that characterize the present year. Warm sunny days cause the human temperatures to rise, the world to seem happy and gay while the cold wet days, the dreary ones with clouds and cold, cause the human barometers to drop to the lowest ebb. If a man is grumpy and cross, if the child is petulant and fickle, lay it to the weather and do not believe that the nature of the individual is naturally crabbed and sour.

HARD AT WORK

The thankless work of the finance committee of the Fourth of July celebration has begun. Every merchant should make the work easier for the gentlemen in charge of this most important work by coming down liberally with their subscriptions. If the day is to be a success the snows of war must be provided for. Each committee has its own particular work to do and the money raised by the finance committee is to provide means for consummating their plans. The mass-meeting of citizens decided Janesville should celebrate this year and it is up to the citizens to supply the needs of this celebration. Liberal donations must be received or the present plans dropped.

Maybe General Kuropki will be able to tell the Mikado what a fine lot of people the Americans are and then the Mikado will be sorry for us and refuse to allow his armies to lick us.

Sherbie Becker still has his foot too hot to please the people of the Cream City, while Dave Rose can tell them wild and woolly west stories. What a pair of entertainers they are.

That wine-growers' rebellion in France looks something like a cessation in the wine trade. Well, American products have long been maligned but now they have their innings.

Milwaukee residents do not mind the strike of the wine-growers in France. The good old German beverage is still on tap.

It is expected that the secret service men will have a few news stories to furnish the correspondents who are at Oyster Bay for a short vacation.

Chicago is to have no teamsters' strike. The price of meat, however, will continue to be as high as possible under the existing circumstances.

A Chicago man stole a phonograph and forgot to steal the horn and was caught. Now he is sorry he used his own old horn to blow with.

President Roosevelt is at Oyster Bay on a vacation. Now the rest of the country can rest in peace for a short time at least.

The sleepy little Dutch town of The Hague is waking up to a Peace confab that will be interesting to witness, to say the least.

Secretary Root is sawing wood and saying little just now but watch him closely to see that nothing escapes his notice.

If a Japanese band can stand for the music of the Mikado then England should be able to take the ban off the Opera's production.

Adams had best kept quiet unless he can go Orchard's testimony one better. The first liar in this case has taken the palm.

The Umbrella trust will think more than a summer shower has set in when Uncle Sam gets in his deadly work.

Ambassador Bryce sees great things ahead for America. Well, there are others who see the great things too.

Jamestown has made the mistake of inviting too many guests before they had their fair really arranged.

The Japanese government have ordered their newspapers to stop printing their war Jingo stories.

Oysters may not be seasonable just now but Oyster Bay is at present the center of attraction.

Horses will soon have their straw hats on if the humans on two legs do not.

PRESS COMMENT.

The "Hymn"
El Paso Herald: The battle him of the republic, these modern days, is Theodore Roosevelt.

Nary a Blossom
Stoughton Hub: Not a single bouquet for La Follette in Secretary Taft's speeches at Madison and Milwaukee Monday. Treason! Treason! Mr. Secretary.

Blessings of Economy
Rockford Register-Gazette: If a man is careful to save every cent, cut out tobacco and isn't compelled to lay off because of sickness, he will find he can afford a porterhouse steak two or three times a year.

Crying Needs of Common Men
Ashland Press: The legislature of Wisconsin failed to pass the bill to require individual towels and longer sheets in hotels, but its members did not forget to raise their own salaries from $500 to $1000 a year.

Looking Forward
Oshkosh Northwestern: Secretary Taft says the Panama canal can be completed in seven years. Let's see that would be during Taft's second term as president, if he should happen to be elected to succeed himself.

Fairly Well, Considering
Exchange: This is the twenty-second week the state legislature has been in session and judging from results the legislators have done fairly well, considering the senatorial problem of which they had to dispose.

Meat's Upward Trend Astounding
Sheboygan Telegram: Meat is mounting upward in price at an astounding rate. It seems to be about time to take some fish for the lakes and wild lands. Fish and milk may allay the brain storm.

Many of Them Still Left
La Crosse Leader Press: The gain of more than 1,100 in the membership of the Wisconsin department of the G. A. R. in the past six months tends to disprove the commonly accepted theory that the veterans of the civil war are becoming few. While out of the enormous number of men who went into the union armies during the four years of war, there are many deaths annually, the survivors still number 700,000—as many as the voting population of Wisconsin and Minnesota combined—many of them are still in the prime of life, and as a body they will remain a powerful force in the United States for some years to come.

The Dreamer
Marquette Eagle-Star: Dr. Plantz, president of Lawrence university, in his baccalaureate address, delivered Sunday at Appleton, presents rather different view of life from that given by exponents of the strenuous life, and endorses the "dreamer" or student as being the man who moves the world. Dr. Plantz well says that to meet success advance thought and discovery must be made, and this is done by the so-called dreamer more often than by the active worker. The fact is, however, that both are indispensable, both working for the same goal, and forming complements of each other. The dreamer must think and study the great problems. He must invent and devise and learn, before the worker can put his organism to successful test and make progress. Academic training is more needed today than it ever was, because the world's problems are more intricate and difficult. The scholar and inventor make the patterns for others to work out, and mark out the paths for others to follow.

College Women in Session
Jamestown, Va., June 13. The Phi Mu sorority, one of the most prominent organizations of college women in the South, began its national convention at the Princess Anne Hotel today and will remain in session the rest of the week. The attendance includes delegates from the leading colleges for women in Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Kentucky, North Carolina, Virginia and other states of the South.

COZY CORNERS AND RUGS TO BE USED

Will Be Used to Make High School Auditorium Pleasant Meeting Place for Alumni.

Tomorrow will be a busy day for the committees in charge of the High School Alumni association banquet to be held at half-past six o'clock in the evening. The auditorium of the school will be thoroughly cleaned early in the morning and the supper and decorating committees will then set about to make the room into a cherry banquet and reception hall. The commencement decorations will be left on the walls and girders and cozy corners will be created in various parts of the room and on the north stairway landing. Turkish rugs and sofa pillows will be used in abundance. The decorators have secured promises of many bouquets and as usual expect members who have flowers to bring them, extra vases having been provided. Roy Carter has been engaged to render a piano solo as a portion of the post-prandial and furnish music during the social session which follows the program. A good attendance is anticipated as all graduates of the high school, whether members of the alumni association or not, and their friends are invited.

GROWTH OF THE "WANTS."

From a little understood and little used force in business life, "want advertising" has grown into one of the great utilities of today.

Nowadays business men turn to want advertising as a matter of course for a hundred small services. The householder uses it as naturally and inevitably as any other convenience of daily life.

Want advertising fills the "jobs" of the world with workers. It finds tenants for houses, apartments, lodgings. It "sells things." It brings loser and finder together. It introduces people whose interests are mutual—even if their guests are diverse.

Want advertising in the Classified Column of The Gazette forges links of "interest" between all classes in the community. It is, indeed, the great utilitarian force in the small affairs and incidents of daily life.

Success.

Success is an ancient game of chance in which the chances are all against the player. The winnings are now divided into three classes: First, money; second, money; and third, money. There are also a few other things like character that count a little. The rules of the game are very strict. Cheating is not allowed—if discovered. Some have played according to rule, and even been successful, but not as we speak of success to-day—Life.

Faint-Hearted Modern Lovers.

The average modern young man cares only for "tame rabbit coursing." He labors under some now-fangled delusion that it is undignified to woo unless you're more than half sure of winning. CELEBRATION TO BE STEM-WINDER

DIFFERENT COMMITTEES GET BUSY FOR THE FOURTH.

MONEY IS NEEDED THOUGH

Finance Committee Must First Secure Funds Before Actual Work Can Begin.

If Janesville does not have a banner Fourth this year it will not be the fault of the men who are interested in pushing the plans for the celebration. In no past year has the celebration been so enthusiastically received as this year. Everyone wants the celebration and everyone seems ready to do their share to make it a success. The civic and industrial parade committee already have begun work, the Nonesuch Bros. parade now looms up bigger and better than ever and the new feature, the automobile parade, is taking form rapidly. It is now up to the citizens to "assure" the success of the finance committee.

The finance committee held an important meeting last evening and began actual work this morning. They were given the "glad hand" on their route and report favorable results thus far. However, the work is far from complete and more money must be raised and raised quickly to assure the carrying out of the plans made. It takes money to run a Fourth of July celebration and every cent collected is reported upon by the treasurer and general chairman, I. F. Wortendyke. The way to assure the success of the day is to come down liberally with the donation.

Upon Mayor Hedges, Eugene Fish, Fred Sheldon, Harry McNamara, Charles Schwartz, C. K. Millmore, Louis Levy, F. C. Green, William McVicar, Walter Taylor, Dr. W. D. Merritt, and H. A. Ford depends the success of the civic and industrial parade. Already several firms have notified the committee they will have floats in the parade, or furnish teams, and a chorus is talked of to sing from a huge float by one society.

Afternoon Display.
Upon D. W. Watt, H. H. Bliss, P. J. Mount, Chas. Gage, J. L. Wilcox, Chas. Bostwick, Frank Monat, Edward V. Whiton, Joseph Murray, E. J. Smith, R. H. Van Cleave, M. O. Osburn, George McKee, W. E. Evenson, Lafayette Myers, William McNeil, Sam Echlin, J. L. Fletcher, Lee Brownell, John Kneek, Dr. C. G. Dwight, and John Soultman depends the success of the famous Nonesuch parade. The meeting held last evening systematized the work somewhat and the east side of the river will be cared for by H. H. Bliss and J. L. Wilcox and the west side by E. V. Whiton and Frank Monat.

Many Exhibits.
Twenty-five individuals have already signed an agreement to furnish separate exhibits and a dozen more have notified Chairman Watt they will be on hand with good shows. A troop of cowboys, of Indians, and a troop of cavalry are some of the mounted portions of the parade already agreed upon and Colonel Nonesuch Watt is anxiously waiting to hear from others who intend to take part. Would-be exhibitors who are willing to take part and want ideas or suggestions, are asked to notify some member of the committee or Chairman Watt at once so that plans can be made for their accommodation. This parade promises to be better, bigger, larger, longer, and with more features than ever before.

The Automobiles.
Dr. Edden is chairman of the automobile parade. To aid him are F. H. Blodgett, Alderman Arthur Jones, Mrs. F. H. Blodgett, Mrs. A. J. Harris, Mrs. H. H. Bliss, Mrs. D. K. Jeffris, and Miss Mae Valentine. The doctor smiles when asked what to expect, but it is hinted that a flower festival with prizes for the most elaborately decorated machine, with some thirty autos in line is part of the plans of the committee. Their end is promised as a complete surprise and promises to be most elaborate in detail and arrangement.

The Decorations.
Chairman W. P. Sayles has not called his committee on decorations to gether as yet but plans are already being designed by an artist of note for the decoration of the streets, both night and day, in a novel and unique manner. W. E. Evenson, W. J. Skelly, Edward Carpenter, E. R. Winslow, John Jones, F. Hinterschied, P. H. Korst, Warren Skelly, Herbert Holme, and Edward Amersbach can be depended upon to furnish sights worth seeing for both town people and visitors on this day of days. This committee also promises a surprise, the nature of which they refuse to disclose.

The Music.
Music hath charms for everyone and the music committee is only waiting to hear from the finance committee as to how much they can spend before hiring five bands for the day. Of course, the Imperial band is first on this list. Then comes the Ft. Atkinson boys' band and who does not remember this outfit two years ago as they marched down the street at the head of the parade? The Lake Mills band that were ready and willing to play every minute they did not spend at meals, is also a possibility. Evansville has a strong musical aggregation that may be hired and if they come can guarantee excellent music. Beloit is also on the list and may perhaps furnish one of the musical contingents. It all depends upon the finances how much music we have. R. M. Bostwick is in charge of this and assisted by A. P. Burham, Herman Feick, H. M. Dedrick, C. N. Van Kirk, and J. L. Fletcher.

SIX JURORS NOT ABLE TO AGREE

ON VERDICT IN ASSAULT ACTION AGAINST RUSSELL.

ONLY ONE FOR CONVICTION

After Three Hours' Deliberation—Lawyers Preparing for a Second Trial of the Case.

Another large audience assembled in municipal court this morning to hear the closing arguments in the assault and battery action of the State vs. Alex. P. Russell. William Smith opened for the prosecution, alleging that his client was struck down without warning by a brutal and infamous manner because of legal and prize money. He alleged that Russell, a worthy effort on his part to have him brutally beaten and treated. The letter written by the complainant, as president of the Home Society, on May 8, calling upon the defendant to discontinue using five head of horses and mules and warning him of prosecution in event he failed to comply within 20 days, was read to the jury. That there was no cause for any personal feeling on either side, Mr. Lane having acted merely as the agent of the Society; that the latter made inquiry at the Myers House merely to ascertain the name of one of the boys who was driving horses with unnecessary cruelty, it being incumbent on the authorities to arrest the party doing the over-driving, without regard to (Continued on Page 5)

GATHERING FOR THE HAGUE CONFERENCE

MANY DELEGATES ALREADY IN THE DUTCH CAPITAL.

GEN. PORTER HAS ARRIVED

Feeling Prevails That United States Will Play Important Role—Russian Program May Come First.

The Hague, June 13.—The delegates of various countries, to the second Hague peace conference, which will be formally opened June 15, accompanied by a host of secretaries, technical experts and attaches, together with a small army of newspaper correspondents, are arriving here by every train and the busy old Dutch capital is beginning to buzz with an animation such as has not been witnessed since the conference of 1899.

The Austrian delegation arrived Tuesday, and were first on the ground. Gen. Horace Porter, former ambassador to France and one of the American plenipotentiaries, arrived Wednesday, as did the French delegates, Kei-roku Tsusuki and a section of the Japanese delegates, Dr. Ruy Barboza and his fellow Brazilians, Gen. Zulo de Quesada, Senator Sauguly and Dr. Bustamante, representing Cuba, and John W. Foster, former secretary of state of the United States, who represents China.

America to Play Great Role. Already a feeling is prevalent among the arriving diplomats that the United States is destined to play a great role in the coming conference. Under her auspices the countries of South and Central America will be introduced to Europe on a footing of equality. The European delegates entertain no doubt that all the representatives of America will present a practically united front at this conference and that henceforth they will be an immense factor in such world conventions. Some surprises are expected from the other side of the Atlantic.

As to Armaments. Speculation preliminary to the formal opening revolves about two questions: Which power, if any, will present the concrete proposition regarding the limitation of armaments, and the publicity of the sittings? According to the latest information, Great Britain now desires America to take the initiative in the matter of limitation.

M. Nelidoff, one of the Russian delegates, at the first business session on June 17, intends to propose the acceptance of the Russian program. Unless the question of limitation is formally raised on Monday its postponement until the discussion of the Russian program is completed would seem inevitable. Yet there is a possibility, in view of the difficulty of presenting a concrete proposition, that the advocates of the limitation of armaments may seek to introduce the subject in connection with some kindred topic.

Battle with Chinese Rebels. Hongkong, June 13.—Insurgents have attacked the village of Yang-chun, in the prefecture of Weichou, where they burned the military yamen. SEVERE STORM IN INDIANA. Wind and Rain Do Great Damage About Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., June 13.—Another severe wind and electrical storm passed over southern Indiana Wednesday afternoon, doing much damage. The rainfall in and around this city was, in some places, as much as one inch. The Ohio river continues to rise here and Green river is spreading out over the lowlands. Farmers say their condition is worse than it has been at this season in many years.

A Late Slave Provides Her Former Owner a Home.—The Baltimore Commercial has the following: Within a few days, past a case, of somewhat novel character has been developed by some philanthropic ladies in Old Town. It seems previous to the war a highly educated lady was residing in North Carolina, upon a very large plantation, surrounded by luxury, and living in true Southern style. The results of the war reduced her to want; her many slaves were emancipated by the proclamation and she was left helpless and alone. She finally reached this city several days since, in search of some old friends, in great destitution, and was about to apply to the authorities for relief, in her despair, when she encountered one of her old servants, now a resident here, who insisted upon returning the many acts of kindness displayed in the past, actually provided her former mistress with a comfortable home.

The Charming Woman. Of all the women born into an ungrateful and unappreciative world none can compare to the really charming one. We may admire the beauty and gaze in awe at the bluestocking, hag the "dear things of our acquaintance" and thump the "good sort" on the back, but in the presence of a personality which "charms" us we remain in speechless and almost breathless fascination. Truly, of every such woman can it be said which was said by St. Simon of one of the most fascinating women of his time, that she walks "like a goddess on the clouds."—L. Luconnet.

Pages one and two belong to the liberals, and pages three and four to the socialists, and the two parties abuse one another finely in its pages.

SALVADOREAN ARMY DEFEATS INVADERS

NICARAGUAN FORCES UNDER RIVAS DRIVEN BACK.

WHIPPED AT SONSONATA

John Moisant, American, Reported Captured by Figueroa's Troops—Three Armies Menace the Border.

Mexico City, June 13.—According to a cablegram received in this city late Wednesday afternoon, the Salvadoran army, has defeated the invading forces which captured the port of Acajutla Tuesday and has driven them back to the coast.

One of the leaders of the invading army was John Moisant, a former resident of San Francisco and an American citizen. He is reported to have been captured by the forces of President Figueroa. The cablegram follows:

"Revolutionary forces under Rivas defeated in an attack on Sonsonata Wednesday and driven back to Acajutla. Juan Moisant reported among the captured, Figueroa."

It is reported on good authority that troops are ready to invade Salvador from three sides.

According to this information, Gen. Toledo and Alfara are on the Honduran border ready to strike and Gen. Sorea will enter the country by way of Arzapala.

Minister Mejia Gets News.

Washington, June 13.—The Salvadoran minister here, Senor Mejia, Wednesday afternoon received a cablegram from President Figueroa dated Wednesday at San Salvador, as follows:

"Government troops met the revolutionists at Sonsonata, a town 40 miles from Acajutla, and routed them, driving them back to Acajutla where they are now trying to embark."

The minister immediately communicated this dispatch to the state department here.

Yorktown at Acajutla.

The gunboat Yorktown is expected to arrive at Acajutla Thursday. No other vessels have so far been given orders to proceed to the scene of trouble.

The Salvadoran minister's advice announced that John Moisant, an American citizen, was with the enemy and probably was captured. The troops of the Salvadoran government are marching against Acajutla.

Sonsonata Is Sacked.

At 11 o'clock Wednesday night Minister Mejia received a second cablegram from President Figueroa announcing that the revolutionists sacked the town of Sonsonata, before they were driven from the village by the government troops. The soldiers entered the custom houses, several government offices, the branch offices of the Occidental and Salvadoran banks and many private residences. After being routed they fled to Acajutla, where the government offices and banks were also ransacked, and boarded a Nicaraguan steamer. Minister Mejia believes that many of the revolutionists were killed in the battle at Sonsonata.

TO PRESERVE INDIAN GRAVES.

Leavenworth Woman Lawyer Seeks to Enjoin Secretary Garfield.

Leavenworth, Kan., June 13.—Lydia B. Conley filed a suit in the United States circuit court here Wednesday to enjoin Secretary of the Interior Garfield from disturbing the graves in the Huron cemetery, Kansas City, Kan., an old Indian burying ground. Following an act of congress, Secretary Garfield recently appointed three commissioners to sell the property, and the effect of the suit will be to tie up the sale.

Miss Conley is a descendant of the Wyandotte Indians and a lawyer. "The land was given to the Wyandottes by treaty," said Miss Conley, "and I, for one, will fight to see that those treaty rights are respected."

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchitis, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherry-bark in promoting digestion and building up the weakened system. It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis, or other inflammation of the stomach. It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of prostatic (benign) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity.

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood, cures rheumatism, cures eruptions, scurvy swellings and all sorts of skin diseases.

"As you will, sir," the president answered. "I am perhaps more of a man of affairs than a diplomatist, and I have spoken to you with less reserve than is altogether customary. But I shall never believe that diplomacy which chooses the dark and tortuous ways of intrigue and misrepresentation is best calculated to uphold and strengthen the destinies of a great nation. I wish you good morning, gentlemen."

"The old Johnny," Guy, was the president of France. He wanted to know afterward what the devil you meant." Guy rose to his feet.

"If you tell me anything else," he said, "I shall want to punch your head."

The vicomte laughed.

"Come," he said. "I will return you to your adorable sister."

CHAPTER XXXIX.

M. ALBERT was not often surprised, and still less often did he show it. He was, however, who trooped cheerfully into his little restaurant at something after midnight on this particular morning succeeded in placing him at a disadvantage.

First there was the Vicomte de Bergillac, one of his most important and influential patrons for many reasons and whose presence alone was more than sufficient guarantee for whom-ever might follow. Then there was the Marquise de St. Etienne, one of the "haute noblesse," to welcome whom was a surpassing honor.

And then M. Guy Poynton, the young English gentleman, whose single appearance here a few weeks back had started all the undercurrents of political intrigue and who for the justification of "French Journalism" should at that moment have been slowly drying at the morgue.

And with him the beautiful young English lady who had come there in search of him and who, as she had left the place, in the small hours of the morning with M. Louis, should certainly not now have reappeared as charming and as brilliant as ever, her eyes soft with happiness and her laugh making music more wonderful than the strains of his little orchestra.

And following her the broad shouldered young Englishman, Sir George Duncombe, who had once entertained a very dangerous little party in his private room upstairs and against whom the dictum had gone forth.

And following him the Englishman with the heavy glasses, whom "Affaire Poynton" had also brought before to his cafe and with whom mademoiselle from Austria had talked long and earnestly.

And lastly M. Spencer, the English journalist, also with a black cross after his name, but seemingly altogether unconscious of it.

M. Albert was not altogether at his best. Such a mixture of sheep and goats confused him. It was the vicomte who, together with the head waiter, arranged a redistribution of tables so that the whole party could sit together. It was the vicomte who constituted himself host. He summoned M. Albert to him.

"Albert," he said, with a little wave of the hand, "these ladies and gentlemen are my friends. To quote the words of my charming young companion here, M. Guy Poynton, whom you may possibly remember—"M. Albert bowed—"we are on the bust! I do not know the precise significance of the phrase any more than I suppose you do, but it means among other things a desire for the best you have to eat and to drink. Bring Pommeury '02, Albert, and send word to your chef that we desire to eat without being hungry!"

M. Albert hurried away, glad of the opportunity to escape. Guy leaned back in his chair and looked around with interest.

"Same old place," he remarked, "and, by Jove, there's the young lady from Austria!"

The young lady from Austria paid her bill and departed somewhat hastily. The vicomte smiled.

"I think we shall frighten a few of them away tonight," he remarked. "The wine! Good! We shall need magnanimity to drown our regrets if, indeed, our English friends desert us tomorrow. M. Guy Poynton, unconscious maker of history and savior of your country. I congratulate you upon your whole skin, and I drink your health!"

Guy drank and, laughing, refilled his glass.

"And to you, the best of amateur conspirators and most charming of hosts," he said. "Come soon to England and bring your automobile, and we will conspire against you with a policeman and a stop watch."

The vicomte sighed and glanced toward Phyllis.

"Under happier circumstances!" he murmured, and then, catching the marquise's eye, he was silent.

The band played English music, and the chef sent them up a wonderful omelet. Mlle. Ermine from the Folie Bergeres danced in the small space between the tables, and the vicomte, buying a cluster of pink roses from the flower girl, sent them across to her. The marquise rebuked him half seriously, but he only laughed.

"Tonight," he said, "is the end of a great adventure. We amateurs have justified our existence. Tonight I give away all that I choose. Ah, Angele," he murmured in her dainty little ear, "if I had but a heart to give!"

She flashed a quick smile into his face, but her forehead was wrinkled.

"You have lost it to the young English miss. She is beautiful, but so cold!"

"Do you think so?" he whispered.

"Look!"

Phyllis was seated next Duncombe, and he, too, was whispering something in her ear. The look with which she answered him told all that there was to know. The marquise, who had intercepted it, shrugged her shoulders.

"It is not worth while, my friend, that you break your heart," she murmured, "for that one can see is an affair arranged."

He nodded.

"After all," he said, "the true Frenchman loves only in his own country."

"Or in any other where he may chance to be," she answered dryly.

"Never mind, Henri! I shall not let you wander very far. Your supper party has been delightful—but you see the time!"

They trooped down the narrow stairs, laughing and talking. Duncombe and Phyllis came last, and their hands met for an instant behind the burly commissionaire.

"Until tomorrow!" she echoed softly as he handed her into the electric coupe.

Andrew and he drove down the hill together. Duncombe was a little ill at ease.

"There is one thing, Andrew," he said, "which I should like to say to you. I want you to remember the night in your garden when you asked me to come to Paris for you."

"Yes?"

"I wanted you, didn't I? I knew that it would come, and it has."

Andrew smiled in gentle scorn.

"My dear Duncombe," he said, "why do you think it necessary to tell me a thing so glaringly apparent? I have nothing to blame you for. It was a foolish dream of mine, which I shall easily outlive, for, George, this has been a great day for me. I believe that my time for dreams has gone by."

Duncombe turned toward him with interest.

"What do you mean, Andrew?"

"I have been to see Poudroye, the great oculist. He has examined my eyes carefully, and he assures me positively that my eyesight is completely sound. In two months' time I shall see as well as any one!"

Duncombe's voice shook with emotion. He grasped his friend's hand.

"That is good—magnificent—Andrew!" he declared.

Their carriage rattled over the cobblestones as they crossed the square. The white, mysterious dawn was breaking over Paris. Andrew threw his head back with a little laugh.

"Back into the world, George, where dreams are only the cobwebs of time and a man's work grows beneath his hands like a living statue to the immortals. I feel my hands upon it and the great winds blowing. Thank God!"

NEW ORLEANS ITALIANS AND MERCHANTS IN MEETING.

President of Progressive Union Says Outrages Must Stop—Lamana Case Brings Crisis.

New Orleans, June 13.—Official cognizance that a dangerous "Black Hand" organization exists in New Orleans was taken Wednesday by the Progressive union, the most influential commercial body in the city, comprising a membership of nearly 2,000 business men.

President Godchaux, of the union, issued a call to members to attend a mass meeting Wednesday night which had been called by wealthy New Orleans Italians in protest against the Black Hand. This call was precipitated by the supposed kidnapping of eighty-year-old Walter Lamana last Saturday night and the subsequent demand for $6,000 ransom from his father, a well-to-do Italian undertaker. Mr. Lamana went Tuesday to Kenner, La., ostensibly to pay the ransom money and obtain his boy. He returned alone.

President Godchaux said that no home in New Orleans would be safe if outrages recently perpetrated here, presumably by the Black Hand, were not stopped. He appointed a committee to work with the police and Italians.

Several years ago New Orleans was the scene of such serious Italian disorders that it is proposed to run no risk of their recurrence. Recently several minor acts of violence have led to a suspicion that a Black Hand organization is operating here.

General Auditor Benson Doesn't Want to Live on Isthmus.

Washington, June 13.—Ernest S. Benson, general auditor of isthmian canal affairs and of the Panama railroad and steamship line, has sent his resignation to Chief Engineer Stevens, of the isthmian canal, to become effective within the next two weeks.

The policy of the government to concentrate on the isthmus much of the work heretofore done in Washington necessitates the removal of the head of the accounting department to the isthmus, and as Mr. Benson does not care to take up his permanent residence there, he decided to retire from the service and reënter the railroad service.

THE NATIONAL RACE.

Games of Today Are More Interesting Than Those of 1906.

TWO CLUBS FAR IN THE LEAD

Chicago and New York Have Driven Away From Rivals, but at Any Moment Some Other Team May Take a Spurt and Change Conditions.

How little can man foretell what is likely to happen in baseball. When the teams shaped up for the race this year it appeared as if the east had been adjusted in such a manner it would help equalize the National league race. Not so much was expected from the west, where St. Louis and Cincinnati were so decidedly uncertain that it was out of the question to anticipate much of them. The outcome of the struggle has shown that the east, while a trifle superior to what it was last year, is nothing like so good as had been expected. The west is even weaker than had been anticipated. The trouble in the east, of course, is with the Brooklyn club. The Boston and

CARL S. LUNDGREN, BRILLIANT CHICAGO NATIONAL PITCHER.

Phillies are playing better ball, but the Brooklyn are far behind their form of 1906. By that is meant their winning form, as there are times when they seem to be playing better ball than they did last year and yet are unable to win. That is by no means an impossibility. Other teams than Brooklyn have played improved ball and couldn't bring their games home.

The National league race, instead of being bunched, has become separated, and widely separated, at the very jump. It is true that it may close in again, but it is more than likely that it will not, for the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs, once they get into the winning stride which has made both teams famous, are not likely to be beaten on much except as they conflict with one another. If St. Louis in the west and Brooklyn in the east had qualified, the National league race would be a vast improvement over that of 1906.

The games are faster and brighter and more interesting in the National league than they were last year. There is a distinct improvement over the work of 1906 in that respect, even if the St. Louis are the tall enders in the procession. The season is young, however, and there may be a marked difference in the club standing and in the baseball situation generally before midseason. One of the teams least expected to force to the front may strike a spurt that shall knock everybody down for awhile and the race shut up tight instead of scattered.

Mike Schreck After Squires.
Jack Curley, matchmaker for the Casino Athletic club of Toupan, Nev., has offered a purse of $7,500 for a fight between Mike Schreck and Bill Squires.

The offer has been accepted by Billy Hogan, manager of Schreck. A telegram has been sent to Squires making the offer and asking for a reply. As yet nothing has been heard from the Australian, and from statements he has given out it is possible he may not accept for a fight at so early a date, as he claims he wishes to get acclimated before fighting. The offer made for the Squires fight does not mean the withdrawal of the $5,000 offer for a fight between Schreck and Al Kaufman. If Squires does not care to accept the club will make strenuous efforts to have the Frisco fighter accept.

McCusker to Assault English Channel.
The first announcement that an American swimmer would attempt to swim the English channel this year was received at Worcester, Mass., recently by Samuel W. Wright from the former American champion, James L. McCusker, whom Wright trained for all his important matches in this country. McCusker was the best in his day until he fell off in training; but, according to this letter, he is in his old time form and is doing daily road work at Somerville, Mass., in preparation for the trial he is to undertake. Accompanied by Henry S. Horan, the swimming instructor at Harvard university, McCusker leaves this month for England and will make the attempt at which others have signally failed.

After Sculling Championship.
Wray, the Australian sculler, who has been coaching the Detroit Boat club, has challenged Durran to row on Toronto bay for the championship of America. Durran is willing, provided the stakes are big enough. The race will have to be rowed in July if at all.

the owner; that there was no desire on the part of Lane to injure Russell's business; that any such effort or even an attempt to interfere would have been futile had not the defendant allowed the said business to be conducted in a criminal manner; that instead of complying with the demands of the letter, Russell had consulted a lawyer to see how he might evade it and only under the advice that any other procedure would subject him to extreme danger had he put aside two of the horses, leaving the old blind mule still in the service; were some of the further statements advanced. The pretense of a justification, based on the claim of the defense that Lane put his hands towards his pockets in a threatening manner and that Russell regarded himself in danger and approached that the complainant would draw some weapon on him, was characterized by Mr. Smith as the flimsiest ever invented. The assault, he said, was a bold attack not only on the individual and the Humane Society, but on Society itself, and the integrity of the laws of the city and the state and his hearers must not, could not, and he took it, would not tolerate such outrages on the public street.

Thomas S. Nolan in opening for the defense denied the attempt to foist on the court the entirely foreign issue of cruelty to dumb animals in place of alleged cruelty to an animal that was never dumb, whose tongue was kept running with never a stop and whose recklessness had initiated in standing up and vilifying Mr. Russell with charges which had no relation whatever to this trial. It was a plain action for assault and battery. Sometime about the 8th of May Mr. Russell received the letter making arbitrary demand that he take certain mules and horses out of the service. He did seek advice because he thought that such a demand was unwarranted, even if it did come from the Humane Society, which had no relation whatever to this trial. He was advised to take such animals from the service as were decreed unfit by a veterinarian and to work the others which were all right, and he followed this advice. The Humane Society, no matter who might belong to it—the good and the bad—was not greater than the rights of the individual. Instead of going to Russell, counsel charged that Mr. Lane, whom he regarded as fit for president of such a society as the speaker was for the pulpit—"a man of generous impulses probably but erratic as the devil"—went about telling what he was going to do and slandering the defendant. The latter had no redress. He might sue but counsel averred that it would avail him nothing and that he would not do so. He collected a dollar. It did not appear by the evidence that Mr. Russell made any threats or said an unkind word regarding Lane before they met on the day in question. According to the testimony of the great majority, Russell got off the bus and began to tell Lane that if he had any complaints he should make them in court and not go about injuring his business; that he said: "You quit bawling me!" and that Lane in a passion said: "You ——— you can't bluff me!" When a man calls another a liar, he should take his hands out of his pockets. The epithet alone, Mr. Nolan contended, was sufficient provocation, but to it was added a second—the sight of hands moving to the pockets as if in search of a weapon. The blow was not unnecessarily severe and there was nothing to show an intention of brutally beating the man.

Judge Dunwiddie in closing stoutly denied the allegation that Mr. Lane had applied any opprobrious epithet to Russell and not Lane who had used it, as shown by the weight of the testimony. He ridiculed the testimony of the boy, Worthington, that Lane had a knife open and that the blade had just been sharpened and the contention that Russell was led to expect a murderous attack when he saw Lane's hands moving towards the FRONT trousers' pockets. He cited the law to show that mere words in no case justified assault, though they might play a part as provocation in a civil action for damages.

The case went to the jury composed of W. B. Conrad, M. C. Fish, Patrick Heffernan, Alderman John J. Sheridan, Philip Costigan, and John Manning, about 11:30 o'clock this morning. Before noon word was sent to Judge Field that an agreement would be next to impossible. Shortly before three this afternoon the jury came in and reported that it had agreed to disagree. The vote, it is learned, was 5 to 1 for acquittal, John Manning alone standing out for conviction.

Immediately after the announcement of the disagreement the attorneys conferred with regard to drawing another jury immediately and proceeding to a second trial.

Meaning of Babylon.
Babylon was great. She used science and she used art, but she abused humanity. She invented sundials, but forgot to regulate with justice the hours of labor. She could calculate a star's eclipse, but not her own. No state has been more guilty of the waste of human life. And when we see her ruins lying like a vast, mysterious autograph scrawled over the desert her history appears to be full of warning.—From W. R. Paterson's "Nemesis of Nations."

ORCHARD REVEALED IN KIDNAPING PLOT

TELLS OF SCHEME TO STEAL THE PAULSON CHILDREN.

LAYS IT TO DAVID COATES

Explains the Poverty That Drove Him to Mean Crimes—Cross-Examination Reaches Steuenberg Murder.

Boise, Idaho, June 13.—The defense Wednesday carried the cross-examination of Harry Orchard down to the actual crime charged against William D. Haywood—the murder of Frank Steuenberg—and as it progressed assailed the testimony and the theory of the state resting upon it.

The Steuenberg crime was reached at midday, and counsel for the defense directed their efforts to an attempt to cloud the earlier purposes and movements of Orchard with uncertainty and indefiniteness. Then they emphasized the abandonment of all effort to kill after Orchard first tracked Steuenberg to a hotel in Boise and, with a skeleton key, had gained entrance to the very room in which the governor was living. Here they delayed for a moment to prove that Orchard twice wrote and once telephoned to Bill Easterly at Silver City to urge him to come and join in the crime, and the direct implication was that Orchard was endeavoring to inveigle another Federation man into the crime, which would bring discredit and dishonor to the organization.

Lays Kidnaping Plot to Coates.

Then the Steuenberg crime was temporarily thrust into the background and the witness carried over his long journey into north Idaho, and his crimes there, including the dark plot to kidnap and hold for ransom the Paulson children, were forcefully emphasized. Orchard swore that David Coates, former lieutenant governor of Colorado, and then a publisher in Wallace, Idaho, first suggested the kidnaping to Pettibone and himself at Denver. Paulson, once a poor miner, had made a fortune in the Hercules mine, in which Orchard held an interest when the property was valueless, and it was believed that if his children were stolen he would "come through" with $50,000 or $60,000 in ransom. Orchard said that when he went to North Idaho he got Jack Simpkins to come in on the plot, and together they went to Coates to renew the scheme.

Poverty and Small Crimes.

Then the defense showed the witness in the commission of a series of mean crimes and reduced to poverty. In which he had to resort to a pawnshop, borrowing and theft to live for a long period. First he pawned some jewelry and guns. This brought him $25 or $30. Then, with a man named Cunningham, whom he said Vincent St. John had recommended to him as safe and tried, he discussed a project to give Cunningham the old Peabody bomb, which he still had in his trunk, for use by Cunningham on some non-union men that were at the Tiger and Poorman mine. Then he accepted the hospitality of Paulson's home, at the very time he was plotting to steal the Paulson children. After that, with Jack Simpkins, he broke into the Oregon Railway & Navigation company's station. They were after a trunk full of jewelry samples, but, instead, got a trunk full of shoe samples. Next he tapped a cash register at Burke for $30 or $40.

It was a long period of crime and poverty and hard luck, and, summing it up, the defense wanted to know why, if he were in Idaho on a mission of murder for Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, and with unlimited credit from them, he did not send to them for more money, instead of borrowing and stealing.

Explains His Penury.

Orchard replied that he did send a letter to Moyer at Butte and got $100, but he did not send for more because he was temporarily off the Steuenberg murder errand and away from where Steuenberg lived, and he did not want to send for more money until he could show that he was back to work.

$101,789 FOR LOSS OF HUSBAND.

Big Verdict for Woman Whose Spouse Was Killed by Train.

New York, June 13.—One of the largest verdicts for damages ever given in the supreme court in this judicial district was awarded by a jury Wednesday when Sarah L. E. Read was awarded $101,789 for the loss of her husband, who was killed by a New York Central & Hudson river railroad train at the Van Cortlandt Park crossing three years ago.

Graft in Famine Relief Fund.

Stockholm, June 13.—The Vartland has accused the governor of the province of Norrbotten of dishonesty in the distribution of $250,000 collected in America for the relief of the sufferers from the Swedish famine of 1902. The governor denies the charges brought by the paper.

Well-Known Indian Chief Dies.

Pawhuska, Okla., June 13.—Ex-Chief Claremore, head of the Claremore band of Osage Indians, died suddenly Wednesday. He had a wide acquaintance among the Indians as well as the whites throughout southern Kansas and Oklahoma.

MOYER-HAYWOOD CASE.

Character Study of the Three Defendants on Trial at Boise, Ida.

Of the three officials of the Western Federation of Miners now on trial at Boise, Ida., for their lives on the charge of having conspired to cause the murder of ex-Governor Frank Steuenberg of Idaho, W. D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the miners' organization, makes the best impression on first acquaintance, says Oscar King Davis, the Boise correspondent of the New York Times. He is a big, sturdy fellow, with a square head and solid jaw. He has lost the sight of his right eye and has developed a curious trick of turning his face away as if to conceal his misfortune and rolling his left eye around to keep track of what is going on. It gives him a queer, unnaturally furtive expression, not at all in keeping with his straightforward manner when personally addressed.

Haywood is a Socialist and an idealist. He is fond of reading and devotes much of his time to it, making it both recreation and study. His friends say that although he is deeply concerned in making the most vigorous fight possible to escape conviction, he has not lost sight of the fact that the death penalty in this case would make him a martyr of organized labor.

But Charles H. Moyer, president of the federation, and George A. Pettibone find no such compensation in their situation. They are both more practical men, desperately intent on making a winning defense. Moyer was the brains of the Western Federation of Miners and its chief organizer. He is of the labor leader type and always extremely popular with the regular labor union man. He makes a fiery speech and carries his audience with him. He has the reputation of being the best man on his feet in the ranks of organized labor today. Pettibone in appearance fits the description reported to have been given of him by Harry Orchard. He is a slight man, below the average height, with a weak chin and the good natured grin that goes with it.

When I saw the three defendants in the county jail the other day Haywood had just come down from the courtroom, where he had listened to the adverse ruling of Judge Fremont Wood. In court he was very nervous and had difficulty in maintaining an outward show of composure. He seldom faced the judge, but continually rolled his left eye toward the bench, while seeming to look the other way. But in his cell he is a different man. He had nothing to say about his case of course, but manifested a lively interest in what was going on outside, and particularly in the effect of the "undesirable citizen" expression of the president.

Pettibone was busy at his favorite amusement, pyrography. He had a lot of specimens of his work and one which afforded no little amusement. It was a big piece of leather on which he had burned the motto: "So live that every day you can look every man in the face and tell him to go to h—."

The signature Pettibone has adopted for his artistic effects in the burned wood and leather line is a goat. He signs all his work with that symbol, and there is an irresistible suggestion of appropriateness about it. For Pettibone is not in the class with Moyer and Haywood. He is the sort of man found in all small towns—the good natured, handy man who can do a job of tinkering, carpentry, painting, general all around usefulness in the small way mechanic line.

Moyer is a tall, dark man, with a narrow face and small, deep set eyes and high, long nose. His long lower jaw ends in a sharply pointed chin, and altogether his face gives the impression of incisiveness which accords with his reputation.

Electric Line Without Rails.

A Swiss company has been formed to construct a tram service without rails between Basle and Eningen, a town on the Swiss-German frontier, says a special cable dispatch from Geneva to the Philadelphia North American. The motive force will be electricity supplied by aerial wires. An ingenious device allows the cars to be guided eleven feet six inches on each side of the aerial wires without cutting off the current, so that two cars traveling in opposite directions may pass at full speed. The cost of the scheme is stated to be 60 per cent less than if an ordinary tramway line with rails were constructed.

The Straw Hat's Will.

I tremble as I think of what is coming soon to me, When I must leave the shop, where I'm cozy as can be, To go out in the open air, As straw hats have to do When custom calls them to the front To make their spring debut.

In other years about this time, When all the world was bright And sunshine like a benison Poured down from heaven's light, And blossoms bourgeoned to the air And birds came forth to sing, It did me proud indeed to join The harbingers of spring.

Not gayer in the glad days Were any birds or flowers, Or sunbeams on the gossamer, Or moonlit lovers' hours, Than if the dazzling stars of spring That like a burning bloom Of beauty on the broad highway, Dispel the winter gloom.

My cheerful spirit met the sun, Reflecting all its rays In doubled radiance and cheer That followed dreary days, I was the straw which showed to all The way the spring winds blow, And spring was really spring when I Came fully into view.

But now—I tremble as I think How soon will come the day When I have got to take the road And shine along the way; I shiver at the dreadful thought And wish there were a law Compelling spring to warm itself Before it put on straw.

The Art of Walking.

To walk gracefully is an art, one which is seldom the accomplishment of the American woman. The head should be kept well back, and the whole weight of the body should rest on the back foot in walking. Set the foot down squarely, striking the ball of the foot first. Keep the chin drawn back well horizontally, which will cause the chest to be lifted, and thus insure deep breathing. Practice walking indoors with a book on the head and the instructions will be easily understood.

Ancient "Cure" for Madness.

In the "Dictionarium Domesticum, Being a New and Complete Household Dictionary for the Use Both of City and Country" (1736), is this sure cure for a malady which has in modern times been regarded as rather obstinate: "For lunacy and madness—Boil three large handfuls of ground ivy, shred small, in two quarts of wine till there is but one-third part remaining; then strain it and add to it six ounces of the best salad oil; boil it up to an ointment, shave the patient's head, warm the ointment and chafe his head with it. This is Dr. Wadenfeld's remedy, with which a person is said to have cured 60 lunatic persons."
